To whom this may concern

I am a street trader in Brighton on John Street. I am appealing on my licence being revoked.

I have just started my business and have loans to pay.

I also have a family to feed and bills to pay taking my licence away from me means that I need to go back to the Job centre. I thought that the government want people in work not out of work.

I know that Sarah Cornell sent me letters about me leaving my Burger van on John Street. But I have told her that there is a big cleaning van blocking me in at the back of my van which is parked on yellow lines every day so could I move my van when beening blocked in.

and also I told her that I need to fix my van which I have now done and am now already taking my van home because the man with the van blocking me in was refusing to move. But but now has move which make easy for me to get out. So I start taking my van home and received a letter saying that my licence has been revoked if my licencing officer would have phoned me she would have knew that I had stated taking my van home and we would not be
